Confluence Denver Ceases Publication

DENVER, CO, September 6, 2018— After 6 years of covering complex issues during an unprecedented era of change in Denver, Colorado, Issue Media Group is ceasing publication of its Confluence Denver publication.

Launched in 2012, Confluence Denver produced a weekly digital publication and email newsletter featuring stories about bold startups, emerging places, catalytic talent, transformative projects, and ideas changing the Denver region.

"Confluence Denver chronicled Denver at a critical time during its evolution." says IMG publisher and co-founder Brian Boyle. "We're proud of the stories we produced that documented a changing city, and the unique and innovative voices driving that change that we were able to elevate through our coverage."

Coverage of the creative arts has always been central to the publication's mission. In particular, Confluence closely followed Denver's growing arts scene through its underwritten series in partnership with Denver Arts & Venues and profiled Colorado's emerging creative district through its special reports supported by Colorado Creative Industries. Confluence also produced annual IDEALab events in partnership with Springboard for the Arts and supported by Bonfils Stanton Foundation, providing a platform for national and local leaders in various sectors to catalyze growth and impact in Denver communities. Other topics of focus included placemaking, economic development, and talent attraction and retention.

"We are thankful to our partners who continued to support the production of Confluence for the past six years," says Boyle. "While we are sorry to go, we're proud of the work we've done, and we think we've helped make an impact in the continuous progress of Denver as a premier place for talent."

The final issue published online Wednesday, September 5, 2018.
